

Nomination Form for Candidates enrolling Fall of 2009

The Samuel & Sarah Wait Graduate Fellowship honors candidates whose qualifications for Admission are deemed by the faculty to demonstrate exceptional promise for Christian ministry. The Wait Fellowships, named to honor the University's principal founders, are awarded to full-time students entering the Master of Divinity program and are renewed for up to three years pending academic progress. The most selective of the Divinity School's merit awards, the fellowship covers the entire costs of tuition and fees and includes a stipend for living expenses. The faculty will award up to two Wait Fellowships to each entering class.

Applicants to the Divinity School should show evidence of personal integrity, spiritual and emotional maturity, qualities associated with effective leadership, strong communication skills, creativity and personal initiative, and intellectual discernment. Applicants are selected for candidacy in the Master of Divinity program who: (1) exhibit in their previous academic record a strong potential for graduate-level work; (2) demonstrate through their commitments, experience, and references exceptional promise for ministry; (3) articulate clearly a commitment to Christian vocation; and (4) give evidence that they will benefit from as well as enhance theological education at Wake Forest University.
